1) Color and art punctuate the room. Furniture placed on an angle allows for circulation in a space with these large openings.
2) The room's foundation over the dining table allows off the chair's voice (accented by Richard Baker), and adds the space on the left. The turquoise color of the art piece on the right is echoed in the pleated chair's pattern below.
3) A large-scale hand-drawn mirror, layered fabric, and patches of green make all of the difference. Just sometimes modern, artistic, and fun.
4) The marble stone mosaic backsplash lends beauty to a transitional kitchen.

Karen Wells Design

Karen Wells Design creates professionally finished, uniquely beautiful interiors. Interior design, furniture design, interior architecture, project management, space planning, and curating collections are our specialties. KWD projects have been primarily in Fairfield County, Connecticut, with additional properties in The Hamptons, Miami, Nantucket, Uppstate New York, and New York City.

Originally from Kentucky, Karen has leveraged her southern heritage and years working in New York City to deliver not only the highest aesthetics, but also manage what can be sometimes complicated situations. Starting out as a fashion designer, then heading design and production, and ultimately running a clothing company all brought skills that are essential to a successful interior design company. Her knowledge of fabrics, garment construction, proportion, texture, and quality control are invaluable to each project.

Each project brings a fresh aesthetic based on the client's tastes, idiosyncrasies, and how they want to live. Interpreting each space for its functionality and refining it through the use of color, texture, light, art, and furniture proportions allows KWD to create environments called "home."
